803, 809	(1) Amends list of terrorism crimes in 18 USC 2332b(g)(5)(B) – adds some but deletes or restricts others. (2) Makes conforming amendment to 2332b(f) to avoid reduction of A.G.'s primary investigative jurisdiction. (3) Adds definition of "domestic terrorism" to 18 USC 2331 and makes conforming change in existing definition of "international terrorism."	309	(1) Creates new 18 USC 25 defining "Federal terrorism offense," including terrorist motivation requirement in 25(1), and offense list in 25(2)-(5). (2) Substitutes "Federal terrorism offense" as defined in the new section 25 for the existing offense list in 18 USC 2332b(g)(5). (This affects the A.G.'s primary investigative jurisdiction under 2332b(f).) (3) Terrorism definitions differ – House definition of "domestic terrorism" includes apparent effect (not just intent).

(The provisions says "section 25(2) or this title," which would cover all title 18 offenses; presumably this is a drafting error and the intended reference is just the 25(2) offenses.) Includes explicit extraterritoriality and venue provisions.
805	Includes in special maritime and territorial jurisdiction offenses in U.S. foreign missions and related residences, committed by or against U.S. nationals. Excludes offenses by persons covered under 18 USC 3261(a) (which provides	355	Senate provision broader regarding coverage of buildings and lands associated with the missions

Also, adds material support of foreign terrorist organizations as money laundering predicate.	306, 402	Does not delete "within the U. S." restriction; amends material support predicates to be "any Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)) and all terrorism crimes in 25(2) list; same as Senate bill on venue, "monetary instruments," "expert advice or assistance," and money laundering predicates
806(a)(1)(A)	Strikes restriction of scope of the material support of terrorists offense to acts within the United States	354	General provision providing extraterritorial jurisdiction over any "Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)) or offense under the terrorism chapter of title 18
806(b) (and also sections 809 and 814)	Makes 18 U.S.C. § 2339B a specified unlawful activity for money laundering offenses; section 806(b) does this the same way as section 401 of the House bill; however, section 806(b) is redundant in the Senate bill because 809 accomplishes the same result by adding 18 U.S.C. § 2339B to 18 U.S.C. §2332b(g)(5)(B) which section 814 incorporates into 18 U.S.C. § 1961(1), all	401	House bill specifically adds 18 U.S.C.§2339B (material support to foreign terrorist organizations) as a new specified unlawful activity (SUA) for money laundering offenses at 18 U.S.C. § 1956(c)(7)(D)

	of whose offenses are specified unlawful activities (SUAs) for money laundering under to 18 U.S.C. § 1956(c)(7)(A).

THE NATIONAL DIRECTOR FOR COMBATING TERRORISM & THE SPECIAL ADVISOR TO THE PRESIDENT FOR CYBERSPACE SECURITY

National Director & Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism
General Wayne Downing (U.S. Army Ret.)

Global terrorism poses a grave danger to the national security of the United States and to the safety of all Americans at home and abroad. Our campaign against terrorism must include military, diplomatic, law enforcement, intelligence, and financial operations in seamless coordination with each other. Many agencies of the federal government are involved in this effort, and close coordination among them is imperative to develop and execute a strategy that draws on and integrates all available resources.

To achieve this policy, the President has established the position of the National Director and Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism. The National Director will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to combating global terrorism, including all efforts designed to detect, disrupt, and destroy global terrorist organizations and those who support them.

The National Director will report to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. The National Director will also report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security with respect to matters relating to global terrorism inside the United States.

Special Advisor to the President for Cyberspace Security
Richard Clarke

The information technology revolution has changed the way business is transacted, government operates, and national defense is conducted. The United States now depends upon a complex, interdependent network of critical infrastructure information systems that are essential to our national and economic security. These networks include information systems in the government, telecommunications, banking and finance, transportation, energy, manufacturing, water, health and emergency services networks.

The United States must protect against the disruption of the operation of these systems. Any disruption that occurs must be infrequent, of minimal duration, manageable, and cause the least possible damage.

The President's Special Advisor for Cyberspace Security will coordinate interagency efforts to secure information systems. In the event of a disruption, the Special Advisor will coordinate efforts to restore critical systems.

The Special Advisor will work in close coordination and partnership with the private sector, which owns and operates the vast majority of America's critical infrastructure. The Special Advisor will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to cyberspace security and report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

The Special Advisor will also serve as chairman of a government-wide board that will coordinate the protection of critical information systems (the President is expected to sign an Executive Order soon establishing the board).

THE NATIONAL DIRECTOR FOR COMBATING TERRORISM & THE SPECIAL ADVISOR TO THE PRESIDENT FOR CYBERSPACE SECURITY

National Director & Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism
General Wayne Downing (U.S. Army Ret.)

Global terrorism poses a grave danger to the national security of the United States and to the safety of all Americans at home and abroad. Our campaign against terrorism must include military, diplomatic, law enforcement, intelligence, and financial operations in seamless coordination with each other. Many agencies of the federal government are involved in this effort, and close coordination among them is imperative to develop and execute a strategy that draws on and integrates all available resources.

To achieve this policy, the President has established the position of the National Director and Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism. The National Director will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to combating global terrorism, including all efforts designed to detect, disrupt, and destroy global terrorist organizations and those who support them.

The National Director will report to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. The National Director will also report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security with respect to matters relating to global terrorism inside the United States.

Richard Clarke

The information technology revolution has changed the way business is transacted, government operates, and national defense is conducted. The United States now depends upon a complex, interdependent network of critical infrastructure information systems that are essential to our national and economic security. These networks include information systems in the government, telecommunications, banking and finance, transportation, energy, manufacturing, water, health and emergency services networks.

The United States must protect against the disruption of the operation of these systems. Any disruption that occurs must be infrequent, of minimal duration, manageable, and cause the least possible damage.

The President's Special Advisor for Cyberspace Security will coordinate interagency efforts to secure information systems. In the event of a disruption, the Special Advisor will coordinate efforts to restore critical systems.

The Special Advisor will work in close coordination and partnership with the private sector, which owns and operates the vast majority of America's critical infrastructure. The Special Advisor will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to cyberspace security and report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

The Special Advisor will also serve as chairman of a government-wide board that will coordinate the protection of critical information systems (the President is expected to sign an Executive Order soon establishing the board).

FACT SHEET

THE NATIONAL DIRECTOR FOR COMBATING TERRORISM & THE SPECIAL ADVISOR TO THE PRESIDENT FOR CYBERSPACE SECURITY

National Director & Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism
General Wayne Downing (U.S. Army Ret.)

Global terrorism poses a grave danger to the national security of the United States and to the safety of all Americans at home and abroad. Our campaign against terrorism must include military, diplomatic, law enforcement, intelligence, and financial operations in seamless coordination with each other. Many agencies of the federal government are involved in this effort, and close coordination among them is imperative to develop and execute a strategy that draws on and integrates all available resources.

To achieve this policy, the President has established the position of the National Director and Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism. The National Director will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to combating global terrorism, including all efforts designed to detect, disrupt, and destroy global terrorist organizations and those who support them.

The National Director will report to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. The National Director will also report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security with respect to matters relating to global terrorism inside the United States.

Richard Clarke

The information technology revolution has changed the way business is transacted, government operates, and national defense is conducted. The United States now depends upon a complex, interdependent network of critical infrastructure information systems that are essential to our national and economic security. These networks include information systems in the government, telecommunications, banking and finance, transportation, energy, manufacturing, water, health and emergency services networks.

The United States must protect against the disruption of the operation of these systems. Any disruption that occurs must be infrequent, of minimal duration, manageable, and cause the least possible damage.

The President's Special Advisor for Cyberspace Security will coordinate interagency efforts to secure information systems. In the event of a disruption, the Special Advisor will coordinate efforts to restore critical systems.

The Special Advisor will work in close coordination and partnership with the private sector, which owns and operates the vast majority of America's critical infrastructure. The Special Advisor will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to cyberspace security and report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

The Special Advisor will also serve as chairman of a government-wide board that will coordinate the protection of critical information systems (the President is expected to sign an Executive Order soon establishing the board).

FACT SHEET

THE NATIONAL DIRECTOR FOR COMBATING TERRORISM & THE SPECIAL ADVISOR TO THE PRESIDENT FOR CYBERSPACE SECURITY

National Director & Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism
General Wayne Downing (U.S. Army Ret.)

Global terrorism poses a grave danger to the national security of the United States and to the safety of all Americans at home and abroad. Our campaign against terrorism must include military, diplomatic, law enforcement, intelligence, and financial operations in seamless coordination with each other. Many agencies of the federal government are involved in this effort, and close coordination among them is imperative to develop and execute a strategy that draws on and integrates all available resources.

To achieve this policy, the President has established the position of the National Director and Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism. The National Director will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to combating global terrorism, including all efforts designed to detect, disrupt, and destroy global terrorist organizations and those who support them.

The National Director will report to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. The National Director will also report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security with respect to matters relating to global terrorism inside the United States.

Richard Clarke

The information technology revolution has changed the way business is transacted, government operates, and national defense is conducted. The United States now depends upon a complex, interdependent network of critical infrastructure information systems that are essential to our national and economic security. These networks include information systems in the government, telecommunications, banking and finance, transportation, energy, manufacturing, water, health and emergency services networks.

The United States must protect against the disruption of the operation of these systems. Any disruption that occurs must be infrequent, of minimal duration, manageable, and cause the least possible damage.

The President's Special Advisor for Cyberspace Security will coordinate interagency efforts to secure information systems. In the event of a disruption, the Special Advisor will coordinate efforts to restore critical systems.

The Special Advisor will work in close coordination and partnership with the private sector, which owns and operates the vast majority of America's critical infrastructure. The Special Advisor will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to cyberspace security and report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

The Special Advisor will also serve as chairman of a government-wide board that will coordinate the protection of critical information systems (the President is expected to sign an Executive Order soon establishing the board).

THE NATIONAL DIRECTOR FOR COMBATING TERRORISM & THE SPECIAL ADVISOR TO THE PRESIDENT FOR CYBERSPACE SECURITY

National Director & Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism
General Wayne Downing (U.S. Army Ret.)

Global terrorism poses a grave danger to the national security of the United States and to the safety of all Americans at home and abroad. Our campaign against terrorism must include military, diplomatic, law enforcement, intelligence, and financial operations in seamless coordination with each other. Many agencies of the federal government are involved in this effort, and close coordination among them is imperative to develop and execute a strategy that draws on and integrates all available resources.

To achieve this policy, the President has established the position of the National Director and Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism. The National Director will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to combating global terrorism, including all efforts designed to detect, disrupt, and destroy global terrorist organizations and those who support them.

The National Director will report to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. The National Director will also report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security with respect to matters relating to global terrorism inside the United States.

Richard Clarke

The information technology revolution has changed the way business is transacted, government operates, and national defense is conducted. The United States now depends upon a complex, interdependent network of critical infrastructure information systems that are essential to our national and economic security. These networks include information systems in the government, telecommunications, banking and finance, transportation, energy, manufacturing, water, health and emergency services networks.

The United States must protect against the disruption of the operation of these systems. Any disruption that occurs must be infrequent, of minimal duration, manageable, and cause the least possible damage.

The President's Special Advisor for Cyberspace Security will coordinate interagency efforts to secure information systems. In the event of a disruption, the Special Advisor will coordinate efforts to restore critical systems.

The Special Advisor will work in close coordination and partnership with the private sector, which owns and operates the vast majority of America's critical infrastructure. The Special Advisor will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to cyberspace security and report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

The Special Advisor will also serve as chairman of a government-wide board that will coordinate the protection of critical information systems (the President is expected to sign an Executive Order soon establishing the board).

FACT SHEET

THE NATIONAL DIRECTOR FOR COMBATING TERRORISM & THE SPECIAL ADVISOR TO THE PRESIDENT FOR CYBERSPACE SECURITY

National Director & Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism
General Wayne Downing (U.S. Army Ret.)

Global terrorism poses a grave danger to the national security of the United States and to the safety of all Americans at home and abroad. Our campaign against terrorism must include military, diplomatic, law enforcement, intelligence, and financial operations in seamless coordination with each other. Many agencies of the federal government are involved in this effort, and close coordination among them is imperative to develop and execute a strategy that draws on and integrates all available resources.

To achieve this policy, the President has established the position of the National Director and Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism. The National Director will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to combating global terrorism, including all efforts designed to detect, disrupt, and destroy global terrorist organizations and those who support them.

The National Director will report to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. The National Director will also report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security with respect to matters relating to global terrorism inside the United States.

Richard Clarke

The information technology revolution has changed the way business is transacted, government operates, and national defense is conducted. The United States now depends upon a complex, interdependent network of critical infrastructure information systems that are essential to our national and economic security. These networks include information systems in the government, telecommunications, banking and finance, transportation, energy, manufacturing, water, health and emergency services networks.

The United States must protect against the disruption of the operation of these systems. Any disruption that occurs must be infrequent, of minimal duration, manageable, and cause the least possible damage.

The President's Special Advisor for Cyberspace Security will coordinate interagency efforts to secure information systems. In the event of a disruption, the Special Advisor will coordinate efforts to restore critical systems.

The Special Advisor will work in close coordination and partnership with the private sector, which owns and operates the vast majority of America's critical infrastructure. The Special Advisor will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to cyberspace security and report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

The Special Advisor will also serve as chairman of a government-wide board that will coordinate the protection of critical information systems (the President is expected to sign an Executive Order soon establishing the board).

FACT SHEET

THE NATIONAL DIRECTOR FOR COMBATING TERRORISM & THE SPECIAL ADVISOR TO THE PRESIDENT FOR CYBERSPACE SECURITY

National Director & Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism
General Wayne Downing (U.S. Army Ret.)

Global terrorism poses a grave danger to the national security of the United States and to the safety of all Americans at home and abroad. Our campaign against terrorism must include military, diplomatic, law enforcement, intelligence, and financial operations in seamless coordination with each other. Many agencies of the federal government are involved in this effort, and close coordination among them is imperative to develop and execute a strategy that draws on and integrates all available resources.

To achieve this policy, the President has established the position of the National Director and Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism. The National Director will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to combating global terrorism, including all efforts designed to detect, disrupt, and destroy global terrorist organizations and those who support them.

The National Director will report to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. The National Director will also report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security with respect to matters relating to global terrorism inside the United States.

Richard Clarke

The information technology revolution has changed the way business is transacted, government operates, and national defense is conducted. The United States now depends upon a complex, interdependent network of critical infrastructure information systems that are essential to our national and economic security. These networks include information systems in the government, telecommunications, banking and finance, transportation, energy, manufacturing, water, health and emergency services networks.

The United States must protect against the disruption of the operation of these systems. Any disruption that occurs must be infrequent, of minimal duration, manageable, and cause the least possible damage.

The President's Special Advisor for Cyberspace Security will coordinate interagency efforts to secure information systems. In the event of a disruption, the Special Advisor will coordinate efforts to restore critical systems.

The Special Advisor will work in close coordination and partnership with the private sector, which owns and operates the vast majority of America's critical infrastructure. The Special Advisor will be the President's principal advisor on matters related to cyberspace security and report to the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security and to the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

The Special Advisor will also serve as chairman of a government-wide board that will coordinate the protection of critical information systems (the President is expected to sign an Executive Order soon establishing the board).

(2) Substitutes "Federal terrorism offense" as defined in the new section 25 for the existing offense list in 18 USC 2332b(g)(5). (This affects the A.G.'s primary investigative jurisdiction under 2332b(f).) (3) Terrorism definitions differ – House definition of "domestic terrorism" includes apparent effect (not just intent).

Includes explicit extraterritoriality and venue provisions.

The War Against Terrorism

➢ Recent military operations are focused on achieving several outcomes*:

- To make clear to the Taliban leaders and their supporters that harboring terrorists is unacceptable and carries a price.
- To acquire intelligence to facilitate future operations against al Qaeda and the Taliban regime that harbors the terrorists.
- To develop relationships with groups in Afghanistan that oppose the Taliban regime and the foreign terrorists that they support.
- To make it increasingly difficult for the terrorists to use Afghanistan freely as a base of operation.
- To alter the military balance over time by denying to theTaliban the offensive.
- To provide humanitarian relief to Afghans suffering truly oppressive living conditions under the Taliban regime.

➢ The World Stands United In This Effort

- For the first time, NATO forces will cross the Atlantic to help defend the U.S.
- NATO AWACS surveillance planes with European crews will circle US skies to free up US AWACS for missions elsewhere in the world.
- NATO frigates and destroyers also will deploy to the Mediterranean to assist in US force protection and patrols.

➢ Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

The War Against Terrorism

➢ Recent military operations are focused on achieving several outcomes*:

- To make clear to the Taliban leaders and their supporters that harboring terrorists is unacceptable and carries a price.
- To acquire intelligence to facilitate future operations against al Qaeda and the Taliban regime that harbors the terrorists.
- To develop relationships with groups in Afghanistan that oppose the Taliban regime and the foreign terrorists that they support.
- To make it increasingly difficult for the terrorists to use Afghanistan freely as a base of operation.
- To alter the military balance over time by denying to theTaliban the offensive.
- To provide humanitarian relief to Afghans suffering truly oppressive living conditions under the Taliban regime.

➢ The World Stands United In This Effort

- For the first time, NATO forces will cross the Atlantic to help defend the U.S.
- NATO AWACS surveillance planes with European crews will circle US skies to free up US AWACS for missions elsewhere in the world.
- NATO frigates and destroyers also will deploy to the Mediterranean to assist in US force protection and patrols.

➢ Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

The War Against Terrorism

➢ Recent military operations are focused on achieving several outcomes*:

- To make clear to the Taliban leaders and their supporters that harboring terrorists is unacceptable and carries a price.
- To acquire intelligence to facilitate future operations against al Qaeda and the Taliban regime that harbors the terrorists.
- To develop relationships with groups in Afghanistan that oppose the Taliban regime and the foreign terrorists that they support.
- To make it increasingly difficult for the terrorists to use Afghanistan freely as a base of operation.
- To alter the military balance over time by denying to theTaliban the offensive.
- To provide humanitarian relief to Afghans suffering truly oppressive living conditions under the Taliban regime.

➢ The World Stands United In This Effort

- For the first time, NATO forces will cross the Atlantic to help defend the U.S.
- NATO AWACS surveillance planes with European crews will circle US skies to free up US AWACS for missions elsewhere in the world.
- NATO frigates and destroyers also will deploy to the Mediterranean to assist in US force protection and patrols.

➢ Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

The War Against Terrorism

➢ Recent military operations are focused on achieving several outcomes*:

- To make clear to the Taliban leaders and their supporters that harboring terrorists is unacceptable and carries a price.
- To acquire intelligence to facilitate future operations against al Qaeda and the Taliban regime that harbors the terrorists.
- To develop relationships with groups in Afghanistan that oppose the Taliban regime and the foreign terrorists that they support.
- To make it increasingly difficult for the terrorists to use Afghanistan freely as a base of operation.
- To alter the military balance over time by denying to theTaliban the offensive.
- To provide humanitarian relief to Afghans suffering truly oppressive living conditions under the Taliban regime.

➢ The World Stands United In This Effort

- For the first time, NATO forces will cross the Atlantic to help defend the U.S.
- NATO AWACS surveillance planes with European crews will circle US skies to free up US AWACS for missions elsewhere in the world.
- NATO frigates and destroyers also will deploy to the Mediterranean to assist in US force protection and patrols.

➢ Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

The War Against Terrorism

➢ Recent military operations are focused on achieving several outcomes*:

- To make clear to the Taliban leaders and their supporters that harboring terrorists is unacceptable and carries a price.
- To acquire intelligence to facilitate future operations against al Qaeda and the Taliban regime that harbors the terrorists.
- To develop relationships with groups in Afghanistan that oppose the Taliban regime and the foreign terrorists that they support.
- To make it increasingly difficult for the terrorists to use Afghanistan freely as a base of operation.
- To alter the military balance over time by denying to theTaliban the offensive.
- To provide humanitarian relief to Afghans suffering truly oppressive living conditions under the Taliban regime.

➢ The World Stands United In This Effort

- For the first time, NATO forces will cross the Atlantic to help defend the U.S.
- NATO AWACS surveillance planes with European crews will circle US skies to free up US AWACS for missions elsewhere in the world.
- NATO frigates and destroyers also will deploy to the Mediterranean to assist in US force protection and patrols.

➢ Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

The War Against Terrorism

➢ Recent military operations are focused on achieving several outcomes*:

- To make clear to the Taliban leaders and their supporters that harboring terrorists is unacceptable and carries a price.
- To acquire intelligence to facilitate future operations against al Qaeda and the Taliban regime that harbors the terrorists.
- To develop relationships with groups in Afghanistan that oppose the Taliban regime and the foreign terrorists that they support.
- To make it increasingly difficult for the terrorists to use Afghanistan freely as a base of operation.
- To alter the military balance over time by denying to theTaliban the offensive.
- To provide humanitarian relief to Afghans suffering truly oppressive living conditions under the Taliban regime.

➢ The World Stands United In This Effort

- For the first time, NATO forces will cross the Atlantic to help defend the U.S.
- NATO AWACS surveillance planes with European crews will circle US skies to free up US AWACS for missions elsewhere in the world.
- NATO frigates and destroyers also will deploy to the Mediterranean to assist in US force protection and patrols.

➢ Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

The War Against Terrorism

➢ Recent military operations are focused on achieving several outcomes*:

- To make clear to the Taliban leaders and their supporters that harboring terrorists is unacceptable and carries a price.
- To acquire intelligence to facilitate future operations against al Qaeda and the Taliban regime that harbors the terrorists.
- To develop relationships with groups in Afghanistan that oppose the Taliban regime and the foreign terrorists that they support.
- To make it increasingly difficult for the terrorists to use Afghanistan freely as a base of operation.
- To alter the military balance over time by denying to theTaliban the offensive.
- To provide humanitarian relief to Afghans suffering truly oppressive living conditions under the Taliban regime.

➢ The World Stands United In This Effort

- For the first time, NATO forces will cross the Atlantic to help defend the U.S.
- NATO AWACS surveillance planes with European crews will circle US skies to free up US AWACS for missions elsewhere in the world.
- NATO frigates and destroyers also will deploy to the Mediterranean to assist in US force protection and patrols.

➢ Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

The State Department's Rewards for Justice Program

The Rewards for Justice Program is a formidable weapon in the U.S. arsenal for combating international terrorism. Established by the 1984 Act to Combat International Terrorism, Public Law 98-533, the Program is administered by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security.

Under this program, the Secretary of State may offer rewards of up to $5 million for information that prevents, frustrates, or favorably resolves acts of international terrorism against U.S. interests worldwide or leads to the arrest or conviction in any country of an individual for the commission of such an act. Rewards may also be paid for information leading to the arrest or conviction of any individual conspiring or attempting to commit such a terrorist act, or aiding or abetting in the commission of such an act.

The Rewards for Justice Program has been an effective tool in the fight against international terrorism. In the past seven years, the United States has paid over $8 million in 22 cases to individuals who have come forward with credible information that puts terrorists behind bars or prevents acts of international terrorism worldwide.

The program played a significant role in the arrest of international terrorist Ramzi Yousef, whose capture is perhaps the textbook example of the effectiveness of the program. Yousef came to the United States prior to the bombing of the World Trade Center to coordinate the manufacture and placement of the bomb. He left the United States about the same time the bomb exploded, but his terrorist planning didn't stop there. Yousef allegedly made arrangements to simultaneously blow up 12 U.S. commercial airliners as they flew over the Pacific Ocean.

Using pictures and identifiers, the State Department flooded the world with posters, matchbooks, flyers, and newspaper ads with information about Yousef and his role in the World Trade Center bombing. A little less than two years later, an informant appeared with one of our reward offers and pinpointed Yousef's location in Pakistan. Yousef was arrested shortly thereafter.

People with information on the September 11th attacks or any past or planned act of international terrorism against the United States are urged to contact the FBI or the Bureau of Diplomatic Security via any one of the following avenues:

Internet:	www.dssrewards.net or www.ifccfbi.gov
E-mail:	mail@dssrewards.net
Telephone:	1-800-437-6371 (U.S. only) or 1-866-483-5137
Mail:	Rewards for Justice P.O. Box 96781 Washington, DC 20090-6781 USA

In addition, people located overseas may contact the Regional Security Officer at the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate.

Terrorism threatens the security of all people, and our determination to fight it is greater than ever. Through the Rewards for Justice Program, we have tracked terrorists aggressively and made them pay for their crimes. Thousands of innocent lives around the world have been saved through the prevention of terrorist attacks. Without question, this program is one of the most valuable assets the U.S. Government has in the fight against international terrorism.

Presidential Action – Wednesday, October 10

White House Office of Communications

ACTION

Today the President will visit the FBI where he will join Attorney General Ashcroft, Secretary of State Colin Powell and FBI Director Robert Mueller in announcing a new joint program to heighten global awareness of America's efforts to locate known terrorists and bring them to justice. The new program will be known as the "Most Wanted Terrorists" program.

The Bush Administration today will also identify 22 known terrorists that have been placed on the list of "Most Wanted Terrorists."

MESSAGE

Our war on terrorism proceeds on many fronts – abroad and here at home. On all these fronts, our efforts will be aggressive, sustained, and relentless. Our enemies will see a tightening net of justice – until there is no place left to run.

Terrorists try to operate in the shadows, but today we shine the light of justice on them. We list their names, we publicize their pictures, and we rob them of their secrecy.

These men have put themselves on this list, by acts of great evil. They plan, promote, and commit murder. These 22 individuals do not account for all terrorist activity in the world, but they are among the most dangerous – the leaders and key sponsors, the strategists and planners. They must be found. They must be stopped. They must be punished.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

All,

Cantwell's CoS, Caroline Fredickson (224-3441), just called me to get reaction on a proposal to limit the "a significant purpose" change to only non-U.S. citizens. I said that we would be opposed because it does not make sense conceptually and impossible operationally. I said that fears of misuse of FISA for criminal investigations are unfounded, etc., but she said she would still try to pursue it.

best,

VDD

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

Thanks for the note. Address is

PRA 6

As to auction items, I am pretty sure there is a policy here against allowing Presidential signatures to be used at auction. I'll check.

Subject: WH Auction Item

Hi Brett,

Personal - Non-PR

Do you think we can get an item signed by Pres. Bush as an Auction Item? I don't really know what would be appropriate - a flag (or is that a complete "no no" and desecrating the flag? Or maybe, a WPost article from 9/12 w/Bush's signature?, or his speech on 9/19ish - GREAT speech; A baseball - I know he likes baseball.) What do you think? Is this possible? Should the item be a giveaway, rather than generating money for a specific Fund?

I've attached a draft letter to you requesting the donation item. Should I send this request to another person who handles these matters? If the letter needs to be tweaked a bit, that's fine - we're open to suggestion.

Thanks in advance for your consideration. I appreciate your help. Call me w/any q's or your thoughts at 202/337-6917 or my cell is PRA 6

Thank you,
Carrie

Mr. Brett M. Kavanaugh
Associate Counsel to the President
The White House
128 Old Executive Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20502

Dear Mr. Kavanaugh:

Thank you for agreeing to review our request for a donation to the Auction for the Personal - Non-PR Personal - Non-PR Education Benefit. We have detailed below information on the Education Fund and the Auction on Saturday, November 17, 2001.

As you well know, the attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon on September, 2001 have changed the course of things to come for the United States. Thousands of lives are – and will be – affected forever. Some lives impacted most personally, others on a more distant scale. Fortunately, the attacks have spawned numerous relief and charitable organizations throughout the nation. While these relief organizations are very worthwhile, we have a unique request for a native Washingtonian.

Personal - Non-PR

The Auction was created to unite the Washington, DC community, and to remember and support the Personal - Non-PR family. We hope you will consider providing an item signed by President Bush to the Auction. Or, we are happy to discuss other options with you.

We look forward to hearing from you. I can be reached at 202/337-6917 during the day.

Thank you for your efforts, consideration and support.

Sincerely,

Carrie L. Bittman

- Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

For more information, visit www.DefendAmerica.mil, the new website devoted solely to bringing you the latest news about the war against terrorism.

PROGRESS REPORT ON COMBATING TERRORIST FINANCING

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.
